Famous Globe Trotter Here En Route to Mexico; Exposed Indian Fakers.

Dr. Paul Edwards, "the most trav-eled man in the world," is naying El Paso a short visit preparatory to a trip into Mexico on a private mission. Dr. Edwards was for years a resident of nterests in the sofithern republic, he has been making his home quietly in os Angeles for several years.

Dr. Edwards, a man of 63, of short, sturdy figure and a flowing, patrierchal beard, attracted much attention at the Hotel Paso del Norte, Saturday, He refused to comment on the motives for his trip into Mexico, but talked with the interesting argot of the globe trotter of his many trips around the world and the unusual phases of life e has discovered in his pligrimages.

Bones of Saints. Dr. Edwards has a tiny locket conbodies of St. Peter, St. Paul and St. Vincent. This was presented to him by the archhishop of Paris in a per-sonal and complimentary letter.

India and Rome.

India and Rome.

"India as a nation and Rome as a lift have been the most interesting diaces on earth to me," said Dr. Edwards. "All life seems to have been onsecrated and summarized in Henares and in the City of the Seven Hills. Flere you will find phases of the vorld's oldest civilization which we aucasians have never been able to athom. They are simply facts the athem. They are simply facts libe be seemic grandeurs of the world, like enuty. like the mystery of life. They imply are: they cannot be explained."

Valuable Serap Book.

Dr. Edwards possesses a book con-traing the travels which is insured or $10,000 with Lloyd's in London. It catains articles and interviews pub-ished in newspapers from Yokohama, and Visdirostok to Johannesburg, outh Africa. An interesting series is ontained in journals from Peru and hite.

Dr. Edwards showed personal letters

Dr. Edwards showed personal letters and pictures which he has received from Cleo De Merode, the famous Parisian beauty; Ellen Beach Yaw, the California song bird, from La La Loie Fuller, the dancer; Mme. Emma Caive, and from the late queen Victoria of England.

Book insured for $10,000.

"The $19,000 insurance which I carry on this little book of stories from the papers in the different cities I have visited does not represent an infunctesimal fraction of the value I place on it." Dr. Edwards continued. While I was traveling and working as a lecturer and a physician I gathered these articles almost mechanically. But now that I have retired, I find the keenest pleasures in going back over its pages.

I would naying every one to keen a

"I would naivise every one to keep a clary and for these who are really taking any sort of part in modern life a log hook will prove one of the greatest comforts in old age.
"I was one of the first Caucasians to expose the fakes of the woulded magicians and worder workers of lania. Dr. Edwards said. There is not even the clament of hypnotism in their romariable performances. Mechanical trickery is the basis of all their mysteries. The snake charmers also are only clever magicians. It must be reconly clever magicians. trickery is the basis of all their mysteries. The snake charmers also are only clever magicians. It must be remembered that the conjurer's profession has been developed in India for thousands of years and that the secrets of the craft as they are developed through the area are handed down from father to son. But those who think there is anything supermatural in securingly impossible performances of these magicians are greatly mistaken. They can all be explained by mechanical and physical laws.

Many Curious Cuits.

One of the things that make life and study in India so interesting is the variety and number of the oults. In Benares one day I saw a man crawing in the gutter or his stomach. He wore a heavy piece of losther about his body to keep his skin from being torn. I had rever seen this particular 'stun' before, so I asked him what was the idea.

rever seen this particular stunt be-fore, so I asked him what was the idea. He said that his mother had given him a curse when he was a child four years old that he should go through life on his stomach and he had done so ever since. "Another strange class are those whose arms are raised perpetually above their heads. This is begun in childhood and by the time the 'victime' become adults the bones and cartileges have grown so that it is impossible to lower the arms. They are continually held above the head. Friends of relatives have to feed this class of devictes."
